

About Deborah

Deborah McNeilance, CMC, CMIS,
CMOM, CPC

Deborah McNeilance is an enthusiastic and knowledgeable professional with more than 35 years in the healthcare field. She holds a Bachelor of Science in Healthcare Service Administration and currently serves as the director for a large healthcare network of physicians specializing in hematology oncology and surgical oncology.

Deborah has served as an administrator for several medical group practices in Cardiology and Medical Oncology where she was responsible for business operations, financial management, risk management and marketing. She has gained insight into hospital operations working with the billing department, human resource department and managing the medical records/transcription department. Deborah was the president and CEO of Med-Line Transcription where she began a medical transcription service offering support to over 400 physicians. Her main responsibilities included business development, project management, consulting, and implementation. Deborah is an implementation specialist who is able to assess practice needs and provide support and follow-up to improve practice efficiencies and operations.

Deborah believes in the importance of mentoring team members to think big and broaden the limitless impact one can have on society and within a healthcare organization one patient at a time. She enjoys sharing her knowledge with others in the healthcare field who are interested in achieving their dreams and goals.
